

Sales and Economics Plan

Senior Home Safety · internal · 22 September 2026

Success is defined as three numbers by 31 December 2026: 8 paid assessments a month, report time at 90 minutes or less, and 5 referral partners who have each sent a family. Hit all three on the dates below and the odds of a lasting, profitable service sit near 90%. The plan cannot promise that number. It lays out what has to be true for it, and when to check.

Where the odds stand today

Milestone	Date	Odds once hit
Today: strong report, zero paid clients, zero partners	22 Sep	About 60%
40 referral contacts made, 8 meetings booked	2 Oct	About 67%
First 4 paid assessments; real calls-per-booking known	31 Oct	About 75%
Report time at 90 minutes or less	31 Oct	About 80%
8 paid a month, 5 active partners, price step set	31 Dec	About 90%

Each milestone missed drops the odds back a step. The biggest single risk is no demand, not the report.

Should it cost more?

Not yet. Private occupational therapists in Canada charge roughly $250 to $500 for a home safety visit, and many families have extended health benefits that cover part of an OT. Senior Home Safety sits at $295 to $495 with no insurance coverage. Going above the OT price before any reviews exist makes the sale harder, not easier.

The decision: hold today's prices for the first 10 paid clients. On 1 January 2027, raise every tier by $50: $345, $445, $545. By then the reviews, the report and real quotes are the proof. Announce the date on the pricing page in November, which also gives families a reason to book now.

The condo tier at $295 is the weakest job: roughly the same desk time as a house for less money. Keep it as the entry price that the ads lead with, and let the house tiers carry the margin.

The real money is in desk time

The manual puts one job at 5 to 7 hours, and 2 to 3 of those are report assembly. Price moves income by 13%. Cutting report time to one hour moves it by a third.

Per $395 job	Hours	Earned per hour
Today (report 2.5 hours)	6.0	About $66
Prices up $50, report unchanged	6.0	About $74
Report cut to 1 hour	4.5	About $88
Both, plus two visits a day in one area	4.0	About $111

Figures are before the insurance premium, ads, vehicle and software, and the card fee of about $12 when a client pays by Stripe.

- Report time. The report builder already turns findings into the PDF. Time the next three reports end to end, find the slowest step, and automate it before 31 October.
- Route days. Book visits two at a time in the same quadrant of the city. Travel is the hidden hour in every job.
- Reassessment at $195. The highest-margin product. Book the date on the 30-minute walkthrough call, not by email months later.
- Break-even. Monthly insurance premium plus $300 ads plus software, divided by about $380 a job, is the bookings needed just to stand still. Put the real premium in that line the day it is paid.

Sales: one push, this week

The manual says it plainly: demand, not delivery, is the constraint. Every hour this week goes to selling, not to documents.

When	Do this
23 Sep	Build one list of 40 referral targets: private OT clinics, home care agency branches, Unison at Kerby Centre, Silvera, Alzheimer Society of Calgary, hospital discharge teams, seniors-focused realtors and move managers.
24 Sep	Send all 40 the referrer one-pager with a two-line note and one offer: one assessment at no charge for a family the partner chooses, first 3 partners only.
25–26 Sep	Phone every one of the 40. Walk the one-pager into 10 home care branches in person. Goal: 8 meetings booked.
By 30 Sep	Google Business Profile verified. Ryan, Annette and the third test client asked for a Google review. Third testimonial added to the site.
1 Oct	Insurance live. Turn the Google Ads campaign on at $10 a day, Sundays and evenings included.
Every week after	10 new referral contacts, a thank-you call to every partner whose family booked, and the numbers below logged every Friday.

The no-charge offer is a gift to the partner's client, never a payment to the partner, so the no-commission promise holds.

Numbers to log every Friday

- Referral contacts made, meetings held, partners who have sent a family
- Calls requested, calls held, bookings — and calls per booking
- Ad spend and cost per booking
- Hours per job, with report time on its own line

- Reassessments booked

Decision rules

- Fewer than 3 paid bookings by 15 November: move the ad money into partner visits and a free talk at a seniors' centre.
- Cost per booking from ads above $150 after $300 spent: pause ads, keep partners.
- More than 10 bookings a week: hire and train a second assessor, as planned.
- Report time still over 2 hours on 31 October: stop adding features and fix the report builder first.

Close the one legal gap that could stop it

Alberta licenses home inspection businesses, and defines a home inspection as an opinion on the condition of a dwelling from a non-invasive look. A business found to fall inside that needs a licence, a bond, and cannot cap its liability the way the agreement does. The service is built to sit outside it, and the word "inspection" is now banned in client material for that reason. Get the written answer from Service Alberta this week: it is a free phone call and removes the largest risk the business carries.

How this feeds the wider business

Every assessment adds a real contractor quote to the price database, a family who can refer the next one, and a partner relationship. An OT or home care manager who trusts the report for one senior's home is a plausible introduction to a building or municipal accessibility conversation for MUNI later. Log every partner and every quote with that second use in mind.
